Hongkong, Tuesday, January 31, 1882.

The anti-opium agitation has now assumed a phase which can admit of no other altertion" either for or against the "Trade." The far-fetched platitudes of Professor Goldwin Sairii, or the semi-imbecile utterances | damaged by a luxury which only draws of Sir John Shale, count for nothing, as from 5d. to 11d. a day from the pockets of their assertions lack originality, being little | those who indulge in it." ... else but a richausse of much that has been already said and written on the subject. very naturally look for results. It is hardly nothing. necessary to add that that preaching and teaching have never realized expectations, and are not quite as satisfactory as could be desired. Reports are submitted, and explanations tendered in lieu of conversion, wherein the "hideous and very contagious vice," of which the "guilt and shame" is party attributed to the British Government, is dilated upon as the "great obstacle" to the regenerating influence of the Gospel!

sively proved that of the opium consumed in China, a large proportion of it, certainly more than a-half of the whole, is locally produced; and of the foreign importation, by sea and overland, India can be only credited with a modicum what her share of the trade is generally supposed to be. Furthermore, the Chinese Government neither can no will prohibit the production of local opium and it is generally acknowledged on all sides that the cultivation of the native drug is spreading rapidly-notwithstanding all the edicts promulgated on the subject. From these facts we may legitimately infer-first, as the Chinese Government cannot prevent the growth and use of opium, the native product may in time displace the imported article, and, possibly, leave a surplusage for export: Secondly, cutting off the foreign supply would only be an missioner under the Governor of Mauritius. additional stimulus to home-grown opium and necessitate time.

Audi alteram partem. It has been conclu-

According to an indisputable authority, Mr. Robert Hart, Inspector General of the Chinese Customs—"Native opium was known, produced, and used, long before drug along the Coast" of China. History shows that in Asiatic countries, opium has diplaced spirits, and the disuse of opium would certainly be followed by the use of alcohol. Of the two evils, medical experts declare opium to be less objectionable than alcohol. "Opium is an evil as well as a great good to China. It is a powerful remedy physically, and a support and inhabitants.

solace mentally to its toiling, hardworking millions." Like other things, its use may be abused. Oplum produces benefits which find no parallel among the effects of alcohol. "It protects the bronchial tubes against the access o tubercular disease, and the nervous system from the attacks of malarial poison.' It imparts powers of enduring fatigue, checks waste of tissue, and counteracts effects arising from a deficiency of food. Dr. Moore has discussed the medical aspects of the "Opium question" in an elaborate contribution to the Indian Medical Gazette. He and other authorities agree that excess in the use of the drug is infrequent. Dr Quincy and Coleridge have done more, perhaps, towards disseminating the literature of "opium-misery" than all else written by others on the same topic since. The drug apparently has had more laid to its charge than it can be made to account for; and on this head Dr. Ayres (quoted by Dr. Moore) says:—"No China resident believes in the terrible frequency of the dull, sodden witted, debilitated opium smoker met with in prints." According to [7] the total population of China are addicted to the vice. This figure comprises consumers of both the imported and local drug; but the higher cost of the former, selling at double the price of the latter, will always preclude its more extensive use and restrict it to a certain well-to-do section of the population. So that China has more to apprehend from herself in this matter, than from abroad as local production can, alone, place the drug within the means of "all!" -that is the poorer classes. The cause of morality would not, therefore, profit by the abolition of the foreign Opium Trade. To quote Mr. HART once again on other points:-"They (the Chinese) admit that opium provides a large revenue, that the expenditure for opium and liability to the incidence of opium taxation touch an infinitesmally small per centage of the popu-State, nor the wealth of the people, nor the growth of its population can be specially

> WE learn by a telegram from London dated the 29th inst. that Earl Granville in an official depatch, upholds the conditions of the Clayton-Bulwer Treaty with the United States. It will be remembered that Mr. Secretary Blaine claimed for his Government exclusive rights in connection with the Panama Canal, and that the English Government declined to recognise the pretensions of the United States, as they were contrary to international law to and the Bulwer-Clayton Treaty. It is satisfactory to learn that the claims of the American statesman have not been generally supported either by the American public or press, so that an amicable arrangement will doubtless be arrived at.

THE fields open for the employment of British capital and enterprise are apparently countless. The Seychelles Islands present apparently exceptional advantages to those interested in planting. The climate is healthy, labour supply plentiful and cheap, and the requisite land can be obtained on favorable terms. The soil is said to be admirably suited for the production of "every known spice, cocoa, and coffee." - The vanilla and cocoa carried off the highest awards at the last International Exhibition at Paris. Cotton thrives, too, amazingly, and the tobacco raised said to be the finest in the East. There is an interest attached is these islands, on the largest of which, Mahe, and the Perak Chiefs are in exile, and for whose restoration to liberty a movement was set on foot some five or six months since. They are administered by a Chief Civil Com-production in China, and would precipitate THE British slag covers 14,000,000, out of a total that, the unavoidable, which, under existing of the existing world's tonnage of 27,000,000, circumstances, would advance gradually Hardly a fifth of the foreign trade of the United states is carried in their own bottoms. Liverpool ranks as the most important port in the world then follow London, Glasgow, and New York in order. The tonnage of Liverpool, 2,647,000, is nearly double that of Glasgow, and the tonnage of London bears the same proportion to that of any European began the sale of the foreign New York. It is further noticeable that the difference in tonnage of Liverpool and London about the same as that between Glasgow and New York-the figure in round numbers being 300,000 in both instances. Vessels of less than 50 tons measurements are omitted from these statistics. In relation to population, Australia possesses twice as much tonnage as either Europe or America, and 40 times that of either Asia or Africa, which have only 2 tons per 1,000

> THE new steel shears for the Dock Company's Sam-shui-po establishment were fixed in place yesterday. This is a much needed improvement, and will greatly facilitate business generally. The shears are of great power, capable of lifting the heaviest boilers, and as there is plenty water alongside the jetty, the long journey round to Aberdeen, which steamers with heavy draft of water have hitherto been compelled to make when discharging heavy machinery, will in future be rendered unnecessary.

An interesting cricket match was commenced this morning between the Cricket Club and the Navy. The sailors went first to the wickets, but no great stand was made against the bowling of Hynes, and the undergrounders of Tomes, the last wicket falling with the total at 101 runs, including eight extras. Winsloe played well for 23 before falling to a good ball from the secretary, Newington and Wilson scoring 13 and 18 respectively, before falling to the same deadly hand. The Club had just commenced their innings when our report left. Full scores and particulars will appear to-morrow.

THE ENTRIES.

The programme for the forthcoming meeting with list of entries—as stated in our last issuewas circulated yesterday afternoon, and we append the bill of fare for the first day's sport. I will be observed that there is a perceptible falling off in the entries for some of the old established events, whilst a very large increase is noticeable in most of the races confined to griffins. That such popular events as the Ashley Cup, Wongnei-cheong Stakes, and Hongkong Derby should have received less than their customary amount of patronage is easily explained. The most striking feature in the race programme, and one we should think almost unexampled in the history of Hongkong racing, is the absence of what we may term foreign stables. With the exception of Mr. St. Andrews-who is actually so closely identified with this colony that he might properly the opposing stables are in the hands of our local sportsmen. The dangerous Amoy contingent, and the sporting Major from Foochow, are alike conspicuous by their absence. This is not as it should be, although no one would appear to in the death of Mr. Edmund Pye, one of the most thorough gentlemen and truest sportsmen that ever breathed. Although the antagonism between the different local stables is certain to be keen and exciting, we have good reasons for regretting not only the absence of the Amoy and Foothow contingents; but also the usual shanghai opposition. Mr. Risk and Mr. siwel have been represented on our programme for some years past, but the first named having turned his back on the scenes of his many victories, and settled quietly at home, the glories of the far famed "grey and rose" and the dreaded "straths" have gone never to return, while urgent business engagements have premeet in Copenhagen in 1884.

vented the owner of Expectation from atttempting -for this season at least-to repeat the successes of the speedy dun,

The ball will as usual be opened with the Wong-nei-cheong stakes, a half mile spin, which invariably produces a good race, and a vast deal of excitement. Fifteen ponies is a very respectable entry, although four less than last year's list, but it so happens that nine out of the total number are in two stables, Mr. Gordon having five standing to his credit, and Mr. Paul four. The Ashley Cup which last year had the large entry of 22, has on this occasion secured only 16, a decided falling off, which can only be accounted for by the reasons stated above. Messrs. Gordon and Paul are again the largest contributors having cleven out of the 16 in their interest. The Hongkong Derby has 15 entries against last year's 19, seven out of the original 22 nominators having paid for it. Messrs. Gordon, st. Andrew, and Paul are responsible for three, and Messrs. Grammont and Kerfoot-for two each. As most of the griffins entered for the Derby have big reputations a good race for the Blue Riband may be confidently anticipated. The Inniskilling Cup, substituted for the timehonored Garrison Cup, is a trophy worth winning, and owners have shown their appreciation of the spirited liberality of the Fusiliers by a large entry-17 as against 14 when second Violin proved victorious. Mr. Paul is the largest contributor with Rose, Sunlight, Financier, Shamrock, and Gold Bar; Mr. Gordon running a good second with last year's winner, second Violen, First Cornet, Gang Forward and East Wind. Strathavon, and Strathpeffer both winners of the Garrison Cup are also entered, and the event should prove of a truly sporting character. No less than 24 subscription griffins have accepted for the Valley stakes, as against to last season, and this popular race should produce the biggest field, and prove the most exciting struggle of the meeting. The handsome cup given by our Foochow friends shows a slight falling off in point of numbers; but the race itself has every appearance of being better contested than was the case and year ago, when Tajmahal came home alone. The Canton Cup, a mile race for ponies that have never won previous to this meeting, shows an increase of one over the fifteen entered twelve months ago. On that occasion the whole of the ponies were griffins, but the present entry includes the well known maidens Gang Forward (late First Trumpet) Strathisla, Detonator, Grim Death, and Jet, (late Storm Wind). A new feature in the first day's programme is the Victoria Plate, over the Wong-nei-cheong Stakes course, for griffins carrying 12st. each, jockeys who have never had a winning mount in Hongkong or China before this meeting allowed 10hs. This event has secured 19 entries, so that a large field may be predicted with some degree of con-Taken as a whole the entries for the first day must be regarded as highly satisfactory, and there can be little doubt that the sport will be of a most interesting character. Now that we have something tangible to work upon, we intend from time to time giving our readers all the gossip and information relating to the ponies in training, and other matters bearing upon the races, which we consider likely to prove of general interest. The second day's entires we intend publishing in our next issue.

SPORTING NOTES.

A drizzling rain fell as daylight was breaking;

but it gradually cleared off, and the morning proved a very pleasant one for training purposes, especially suited for sweating. First Cornet was on the course very early, and after a bout of trotting exercise cantered smartly about half a mile. Strathavon and strathpeffer went through a long spell of trotting work, the griffins in the same stable going through similar exercise. Lord of the Isles trotted four miles; his stable companions Lochiel and Whisper in blankets, trotting three miles, finishing up with a long slow canter. Sunlight, Rose, Tajmahal, and two or three of Mr. Paul's griffins were restricted to slow work, the whole of them looking the picture of health. Mr. Hutchings rode Wild Race in his work, last year's Derby winner striding along in grand form. Redstart, after a spell of trotting, galloped a quarter of a mile in his usual taking style. The other ponies in this team are in physic. Iroquois and Driving Cloud were walking in the centre of the valley, and will, we understand, commence hard work with the remainder of this team, tomorrow morning. The East Point subscription griffins, Grey Mist and Scotch Mist, were trotting steadily, the big grey ridden by a gallant Colonel, who is no novice between the flags. Glengarry cantered slowly for a mile and a half, Strathisla after the usual trotting, also cantering. Mr. Reynellrode Humbug, and Mr. Nickells Lightning enough he considered a resident—the whole of in quiet exercise. Roscola, Too-too, and Sub-Rosa only trotted, but Jet and Pedrillo were sent along steadily. Second Cornet, Airlie, and Hualachan did nothing noteworthy, but second Violin and First Trumpet were sent a long sweat in heavy blankets. Dunrobin and East Wind be responsible for the absence of the ever-welcome | also did good trotting exercise. Detonator, ridden Coast Port opposition. CRICKET.

"INCONSTANT" V. "IRON DUKE."

A match between teams repesenting the above named vessels was played on the cricket ground yesterday, commencing shortly before noon. The Captain of the Inconstant eleven, winning the toss, elected to take the first innings, and sent in for the flag-ship. That both batsmen meant business was quickly shown by the impartial manner in which they treated both bowlers, Stebbing's first over receiving punishment to the tune of eight runs, whilst his partner's initial attempt yield a three and a brace of singles. Parr had just reached double figures when he fell to a smart catch by Alexander off Patey, and Spearman, who followed, was thrown out by Ethelston in attempting a very near thing, without scoring, although he assisted Winsloe in raising the score from 19 to 30. The stand of the innings was neade by the last-named player and Bishop, the the pair defying all efforts of the bowlers to dislodge them, and giving the Iron Dukes enough leather-hunting to last them for some time, such an exhibition of hard hitting we have seldom seen, and when the Marine at last gave Ethelston a chance off Alexander, which that clever fillder contributed 57, made up of one six, a brace of fives, two fours, half a dozen-threes, two twos, and singles, by clean, hard hitting, and good cricket. Three wickets for 155 tuns. Henderson was the next to come and go, as, after scoring a leash of singles, he was caught by Alexander off stebbing; and Caulfield, Mundy, and Hutchinson were sent back in succession without troubling the scorers. Five, six, and seven, for 160. Robinson joined Winsloe, and the score steadily increased, the Lieutenant driving stebbing twice over the Pavilion in one over, for a brace of sixes. Robinson was also very busy, scoring 13, by one five, a three, a brace of twos, and singles, before being beaten by a good ball from Alexander. Eight for 189. Walter stayed a long time at the wickets, playing very cautiously, whilst his parener continued to hit the bowling all over the field, and a separation was not effected until 43 nons had been added to the total, when a combination of Patey and Alexander sent Walter back to the Pavilion. Dyer was last man, and he only scored . a single, his partner supplementing it with a drive for four, when Alexander-who had bowled well and successfully-found a way to his stumps, the innings terminating for the large total of 237 runs. Winsloe was first man in; and he carried out his bat for 134 rans-four sixes, six fours, fourteen threes, seven, twos and singles—the largest score made this season. Although the innings was not altogether faultless, Winsloc exhibited a fine defence, and hit exceptionally hard. Alexander was the most successful bowler, although his five wickets cost 66 runs.

Patey and Hibbert commenced the innings for the flag-ship, Bishop and Hutchinson sharing the bowling. 'A bad start was made, Patey placing one in Winsloe's hands off Bishop when the telegraph registered only one run, and Hibbert got his leg in the way in Bishop's following over. Two for four runs. With the addition of five to the total, stebbing was caught off Bishop by Munday, and three good wickets were down for nine runs, a rather gloomy outlook for the Iron Dukes. Bishop at this time had bowled three overs, one maiden, for six 1.'ns and three wickets. When Dormer and Fraquhar become associated a firm stand was made, both youngsters hitting out manfully, and the score quickly rose. A change of bowling was tried, Pair and Spearman going on, but still both batsmen scored rapidly, and 40, 50, 60, and then 70 appeared on the telegraph board in quick succession. At 75 a separation was at length effected, Dormer running himself out, and with the addition of five runs, Farquhar fell to a trimmer from Parr. Five for 80. Ethelston and Alexander played good cricket, the former especially batting in admirable style. Alexander just failed to reach double figures when he was caught and bowled by Parr, and Jones was stupidly run out after contributing five singles. Blackiston and Ethelston stayed together a long time, and when both got well set it appeared as if the flag-ship team might, after all, pull through. It was not to be, however, Blakiston foolishly running into a seductive one from Bishop, and, missing, paid the usual penalty. Eight for 155, the last wicket having put on 39 runs. Hogg kept up his wicket while Ethelston scored, 24 runs being added before the end came, Winsloe bowling Hogg and Lowry with consecutive balls. Ethelston played a careful/innings for 59, not out (six fours, five threes, and no less than 20 singles), but he gave several chances. The innings closed for a total of 179, leaving the Inconstant eleven victorious by 58 runs. Full scores are appended :-

THE MORALITY OF OPIUM.

Sir George Birdwood, in reply to the address of the Archbishop of York at the Albert Hall, sheffield, on Dec. 8, on the above subject (which we noted in our issue for Dec. 16) publishes the following letter :--From Sheffield the Lord Archbishop of York has sounded a counter-blast to opium worthy of the horn of Ulphus, which has lain so many centuries in silence within the hallowed walls of his Grace's own Minster since last it woke the son of Thorald. It would have been more to the purpose, however, if instead of hounding on his audience against a momentary antagonist, his better than the acute and learned author of the Laws of Thought"—the quiet sword of reason, pered "Sheffield whittle."

As sir Rutherfood Alcock is going to read a paper on the opium question, early in January, before the society of Arts, I shall not attempt bewhich, in my letter to The Times of the 6th inst., endeavoured to support the morality of the Indian opium revenue. I propose for the present only to protest, as briefly as possible, against the the Russian war served as a midshipman with Archbishop's misrepresentations of my argument which I am sure were quite unintentional, and due probably to his not having had time to more in the East Indies and China. On the latter than glance at my letter before addressing the Albert Hall meeting. I said that opium smoking was, of itself, absolutely harmless, admitting that I had known cases of desperate suffering, apparently from excess in it, but explaining that Argus he rendered important services on the they were all instances of moral impeciles, addicted to a generally depraved life, and that the opium pipe was merely the last straw laid on their already broken-down backs. His Grace's reply is this:—"If it is absolutely harmless, like a mutton chop, how would it sound to say, so and so was very ill, and we gave him a mutton their pecuniary support on private patronage, chop, and that was the last straw that broke the | that very often a man of genius, if sprung from camel's back, and he died." Well, the Lord Buddha actually died of eating pork chop; and, undoubtedly, since him many another vigorous and hearty minded man, forgetful that the stomach grows old and weak, has killed himself before his due time through eating heedlessly of mutton chop, or chop of other flesh, absolutely harmless under ordinary circumstances. Let me add, that in fourteen years I never saw a case of death of

All through his speech his Grace identifies opium eating and drinking with opium smoking, and expressly refuses to believe that there are any disserences in their effects!-imputing inconsistency to me because I distinguish between their at the relief of Lucknow, on which occasion he effects. There is just as great a difference between those of tobacco administered internally and tobacco smoked. Even tobacco chewing and snuffing are quite different in their effects from those of tobacco swallowed.

Worse than inconsistency, his Grace charges me with "want of carnestness," because he wrongly understood me to say, that while "alcohol acts with doubly destructive force in tropical climates-yet all the while I was in India I was an advocate of the use of all stimulants in moderation, and it was only when came to England and saw on all sides of me, and every day, the evil effects of the abuse of alcohol, that I was gradually led to sympathise with those who were voluntary abstinents from every form of stimulant." His Grace makes great fun out of this strange wresting of my words. The simple fact is, that, whilst living among opium eating and drinking populations, to whom alcohol has, easily swayed by flighty impulse, frothy sention account of its rapidly destructive action, been forbidden for centuries by their ecclesiastical laws, I saw so little evil resulting from their habitual and often apparently excessive use of opium, that all the while I was among them I advocated moderate indulgence in all stimulants; and it was only when I was brought face to face with the loathsome public-house organisation of wholesale intoxication, depravity, and crime, in London and our other great cities, and with the not only superior knowledge but also superior hair fron 5 to 6 feet long. By constantly using outcast dangerous population created by it, such as exists nowhere else in world, that I was gradually led to sympathise with the total

Worse again "want of earnestness," I am charged with having some private reason for doing away with the effect of the whole thing"i.e., the alleged immorality of the Indian opium | State. That was the only theory we had hitherto | scalp, which is the great cause of people losing he urges-"His letter is written for a purpose;" screened behind an anonymous "A. B. letter." What I really said, in effect, was, that I no longer advocated drinking alcohol at home, but that opium smoking is, of itself, absolutely harmless, and affords no justification whatever for the honest, hardworking grinders, and cutlers of sheffield trying to abolish the 7,000,000% to 9,000,000% opium revenue of India, for any immorality there may be in it. Opium smoking in China is not half so injurious to human life as the grinding of knives and forks in the noisome factories of sheffield, and that for the enriching and sumptuous pleasures of others. Of course the Indian opium revenue must be considered in this controversy, but that is no part of the line of argument I am taking. Others must deal with the enormous political and financial interests involved. I restrict myself to the medical view of the question. It is only because I am convinced that opium smoking is really not deleterious that I have taken and part in this discussion-The overwhelming induction of verified facts is that opium is in the same category with alcohol, and opium smoking with tobacco smoking; while my own opinion, whatever may be its worth, of opium smoking is that it is absolutely harmless. It is probably less injurious than sucking sugarstick, and is certainly less injurious than tea drinking; and the Chinese will no more be driven from it than the rest of the world from tobacco smoking, betel chewing, tea and coffee drinking, 6th February. and other analogous national indulgences. It may be abused by the vicious, as well as used by the virtuous; but I am defending the virtuous use, and not the vicious abuse of the opium "Satan with apples Eve beguil'd, But sin, not apples, her defil'd,"

P.s.—If the Chinese ever cease to be provided with pure Indian opium, which alone is fit for preparing the chandu they use in smoking, on account of its small proportion of morphine, they will either take to opium eating, or, worse, to drinking alcohol, and that unfortunately, not probably of European manufacture, but of their own defective and poisonous distillation.

LORD LYTTON ON CULTURE.

The Earl of Lytton presided, on December 9th, at the fifty-eighth annivesary of the Birkbeck Literary and Scientific Institute, and the Countess distributed the prizes and certificates to the students. The prizes having been presented, the Chairman observed that the institution had been one of the first that threw open their doors to the youth of both sexes. It was not creditable that in the fifty-eighth year of its existence that great college should be so badly housed. That discredit, however, did not rest with the managers, nor with the students, but it rested with the whole body of the English people, inasmuch as the benefits it conferred were not circumscribed by a single locality, but the whole nation was involved in the adequate recognition and requital of it's merits. The cost of the new building was estimated at 19,500%, and of that sum 17,500% 2,000 students, and if each contributed 1% the deficiency might be made up; but the students ought not to be looked to for that purpose. In former times the patrons of those great national interests were feudal persons, and we were accustomed to impute it as a reproach to the ages which left genius and scholarship dependent for the ranks of the people, was constrained to linger for pecuniary support in the ante-chamber of some private patron, or to languish for lack of it in some Grub-street garret. But all that was changed now, The people were becoming the patrons; and he would ask whether the patronage of its own clients was to be a similar reproach? That institution was one of the earliest, hardiest, and worthiest in existence; and he asked whether its alumni were to be be left to huddle in garrets, or at best in most incommodious chambers, when they were already numerous enough to fill the stateliest apartments of a palace?—(Cheers.) The working classes of this country, instead of requiring to be coaxed into the acceptance of means of mental culture, had long since taken the lead in a great national movement which, year by year, was appreciably improving the education of every class of the community.—(Hear, hear.) After all, however, the advantages and delights of knowledge did not constitute the highest or most essential requirements, either for individuals or for nations, and yet when they came to apply the gifts of mental culture to the practical affairs of life, the result would disappoint their otherwise just expectations if, in the acquisition of those gifts, they had neglected the cultivation of character. -(Cheers.) In the humblest business, as well as in the highest aims of life, success practically depended on the exercise of the moral quite as much as on that of the intellectual faculties. Knowledge by itself was only a small power. "It was character that converted it into a great power. Character was to knowledge just what interest was to money. It was the animating force that rendered it productive. The students of that institution would be much better instructed than their fathers and mothers were before them; but let them not forget that, with infinitely less knowledge than we now possessed the English had maintained for centuries, and throughout the world, the character of a great and commanding people.—(Cheers.) temper had been reputed steadfast in peace, not ment, or looksh panic. Their tenacity in war. had been undaunted by superior numbers, or even by temporary defeat, and in commerce their probity had been above suspicion. Those numbers.
